A Christmas Mystery

Lady Darnwell has lost something. She is now looking for it furiously, but she can't find it. It was a Christmas surprise for the family!

Her nephew David asked her: "Auntie, can I help you somehow?"

Lady Darnwell answered: "Well, it was a small parcel wrapped in brown paper. I wanted to use it on Christmas Eve!"

David: "I will ask the people. Perhaps they have seen it."

He asked his son Tim: "Tim, have you seen a small parcel wrapped in brown paper? Auntie is looking for it."

Tim: "When I was going to the garden I saw it on the table in the hall." But the parcel wasn't there when David came.

Then David asked his wife Joan.

Joan: "When I was sitting in the living room, the parcel was under the armchair." But it wasn't there either.

David's daughter Eleanor said: "Well, I saw it in the bedroom. I was wrapping the presents there and the parcel was on the bed!" David went to the bedroom, but he couldn't see any parcel there.

David's sister Harriet said: "It was on the floor in the bathroom, when I was cleaning my teeth this morning." But there was nothing in the bathroom any more.

Peter, Harriet's husband said: "When I was decorating the Christmas tree, I saw a brown parcel in the corner." But the corner was empty.

"Auntie, I am sorry, I didn't find it." said David sadly. "It's strange." said lady Darnwell. "Don't trouble about that any more, David. We can do without it. Toby! Come here, Toby!"

A small, fluffy white dog was playing with something. "Toby! What are you playing with?" David opened Toby's mouth. "Auntie! I have found the surprise! Toby was playing with it in the morning and left it in the bathroom. Harriet saw it when she was cleaning her teeth. Then he was playing in the bedroom and Eleanor found it when she was wrapping the presents. Then he ran to the living room and left it under the armchair. Joan saw it when she was sitting there. And then Peter saw it when he was decorating Christmas tree. Toby left it in the corner of the hall."

Lady Darnwell laughed: "A naughty dog! He can jump high! I put the parcel on the table in the hall yesterday."

"Yes, Tim saw it there when he was going to the garden."

"All right, David. I hope that you will like the surprise in the evening!"
